

I was first introduced to web development during my third-year internship at the National Institute of Technology.